Genoua, July 8.

SInce our last arrived here the Providence from Legborne, and the Friendlhip and Hopeful from Spain. This Morning sailed from hence the Spanish and Genoueſe Galleys 37 in number, with three Galliots and four Barks, all very well fitted, and the Genoueſe commanded by Don Hippolito Centurione; They got this Evening to Vada near Savona, where they are to take in more Soldiers: Since they went from hence a Felucca has been dispatched to give them notice that the French Fleet is in the Bay of Roſes.

Venice, July 8. We have received advice from Corfu that the Sieur Molino sailed from thence the sixth of the last month for the Archipelago, having under his command 13 Men of War of this State, and two Fireships, and three Men of War of Malta; which is confirmed by a Vessel arrived from Zant; the Master whereof farther informs us, that four Galleys of the great Duke of Tuscany, and the two Men of War which the Republick bought of the Duke of Savoy, were arrived at Corfu, and that the Galleys of Malta were dayly expected there; What was reported of these Galleys having been engaged with several Men of War of Tripoli, is not confirmed. We have an account from Ieſſina, that General Moroſini was parted from thence for Corfu. The Pyrates of Dulcigno and Sta. Maura have landed on the side of Zara and Senigallia, and have carried away near 100 Persons.

Dantzick, July 3. Our Letters from Cracow tell us, that the Sieur Moroſini Ambassador Extraordinary from the Republick of Venice, arrived there the 23d of the last month, and the next day continued his Journey for Jawarow, where the Court of Poland still was; and from Jawarow they write, that the King intended to receive the said Ambassador at Zolkiew, and from thence to go to his Army; And that his Majesty had named the Sieur Igurti to go in the quality of his Envoy to the Sophy of Perſia.

Vienna, July 13. On Sunday last Te Deum was sung here, and the Cannon of this place were thrice discharged for the Victory obtained by the Imperial Army the 27th of the last month near Vaccia. The news we have since, is, That the Duke of Lorrain had put two Batallions and some Dragoons into Peſt; from whence they battered Buda with their Cannon; and that his Highness had ordered a Bridge of Boats to be laid over the Danube below Vaccia, which would be finished the 10th Instant. From Presbourg they write that the Baron d'Orliecke had with 400 Horse beaten a great Party of Rebels who were fallen into Moravia to ravage the Country, and that among the Prisoners he had taken, was the Baron Gaſpar Bongratz an Officer in much Reputation with the Rebels. And that the Sieur Gambor de Patnocke had defeated another Party of the Rebels, and had taken five Standards and 36 Prisoners. The Castle of Ungwar in the Upper-Hungary is closely besieged by the Rebels, but we hope it will be timely relieved. We continue to work here on the two Bastions and the Ravelin that were ruined during the Siege, which are almost finished. Several Boats are sent daily from hence with Ammunition and Provisions for the Imperial Army; and divers Officers have of late passed through this place going for Hungary with the Recruits they have raised.

Lintz, July 15. The last Letters from Hungary gave an account that the Imperial Army would repass the Danube the 11th and 12th Instant, and that the Duke of Lorrain was resolved to advance directly to Buda, and to attack that place, which is of no great strength, having only an old Wall and Towers, without any Modern Fortification. The Emperor intends to part from hence with the whole Court the first of the next month, and to return to Vienna, whither orders have been accordingly sent to prepare things for their Imperial Majesties reception. The last Letters from Poland told us, that the King had given Audience to the Ambassador of Venice, and that he would part in a day or two, to put himself at the head of his Army; and that his Majesty had sent some Troops towards Upper-Hungary to relieve the Castle of Ungwar.

Ratisbonne, July 20. From Hungary we have an account that the Militia of that Kingdom are drawn together, making a Body of above 10000 men under the command of their Palatine the Count d'Eſterhaſs; and that the greatest part of them are to joyn the Imperial Army, and the rest to guard the Passages about Newheuſel. That the Duke of Lorrain was laying a Bridge over the Danube at the Isle of St. Andrew, which he intended to pass and to attack Buda, though he had advice that the Turks lay encamped in a considerable Body not far from that place; That General Caprara with 6000 men (among which were 600 Hungarians that had deserted Count Teckely) and the Chevalier Lubomirski with 4000 Poles, had joyned the Imperial Army, which with these reinforcements is become above 40000 strong. And that Count Leſly had orders to march with the Troops under his command towards the Bridge of Eſſecke. There were with the Body of Turks that was lately defeated near Vaccia 4000 Tartars, who not having time to repass the Danube at Peſt, which the Turks did in great disorder and precipitation, retreated towards Erla. They write from Poland that the Turks had put some men and Provisions into Caminiec, having beaten a Party of Poles that would have hindred it. That a considerable number of Cossacks, after having received a great Sum of Money from the Pope's Nuncio, had left their General Mobila and were gone home, and though several Officers were sent after them to perswade them to return, yet it was feared it would not be of any effect: That the King of Poland intended to go into the Field the 10th Instant, and that the Marquis de Bethune would attend him as a Volantier.
